Dialogue, healing service welcomes veterans and families

As you've heard in the media, our returning military men and women are suffering in alarming numbers from various manifestations of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) and other war-related trauma, often surfacing as suicide, drug abuse and alcoholism. While various physical and emotional support services are available to vets and their families, there often is not good spiritual support available.

The Wauwatosa Minister's Association is sponsoring a healing service for vets and their families where they might come and experience the balm of worship and spiritual community. Our church is hosting this event on the Saturday after Veteran's Day, Nov. 15.

A dialogue precedes the service, featuring Dr. John Zemler of Marquette University. Dr. Zemler is a doctoral-level theologian and military veteran who encourages the church to offer its healing arts to veterans. Dr. Zemler himself has PTSD and has been healed—not necessarily cured—through the Biblical witness and the church's liturgy.

The public will be invited to this as well as vets and we especially encourage FCC members to come out and support this ministry of healing.

Saturday Nov. 15 at FCC
5 p.m.

Dr. John D. Zemler Marquette University
speaks on Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) among veterans. Dr. Zemler is both an academic theologian (with a Ph.D. in Biblical Theology) and a military veteran. He speaks explicitly of his own struggles with PTSD, and the need to better welcome returning veterans who often bear the pain of PTSD-related symptoms.

6 p.m.
Pot-Luck Dinner

7 p.m.
Healing Service
An ecumenical healing service for veterans, their families and friends, facilitated by the clergy of the Wauwatosa Ministers Association, and open to the public.

You are invited to any and all events.

Faith and Film:

Why do we have to die?

Stranger Than Fiction (2006)

Friday, Nov. 14

7:30 p.m., Lounge

Harold Crick leads a monotonous and repetitive life, until one day when he begins to hear an author inside his head narrating his life with accurate detail. When the narration reveals that in the story of his life, the author is going to have his character killed, Harold must find the author to convince her to change the ending of the story before it is too late.

A gripping moral tale, with themes of the interconnectedness of humanity, inevitability of death, the passionate ties between humans and God (or character and author). Stars Will Ferrell, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Dustin Hoffman, Queen Latifah and Emma Thompson. Rated PG-13 for some disturbing images, sexuality, brief language and nudity. Filmed on location in Chicago.

Fall Clean-Up Day is Nov. 8

Can you spare a couple of hours? Maybe even more? The annual fall church clean-up day will be on Saturday, Nov. 8. The leaves will be off the trees, the Badgers don't have a home game that day, and soccer season will be wound down. It's the perfect weekend for helping out at church. The Board of Trustees is looking for volunteers of all ages to spend all or part of the day sprucing things up – inside and out.

What can you accomplish in a couple of hours? Plenty! There are projects for any and all skill levels. Sunday school room furniture and toys in the nursery need scrubbing. All of the woodwork in the nave needs a good cleaning and windows need washing in all of the rooms. Furniture in the Parlor, Library, and Friendship Lounge needs cleaning and polishing. The kitchen also needs to have cupboards and appliances cleaned.

Outdoor activities include lawn and garden work. Please bring along your lawn tools, carts, and ladders. We want to remove the annuals from the flowerbeds and trim and shape the perennials, shrubs and trees. First floor windows on the outside really need to be washed. Window wells can be cleaned and those windows can be washed also. Some painting and caulking projects may need to be done.

For those who have special skills you might want to contact Richard Raymond in advance, and he can give you a special assignment.

Children are welcome! It is a wonderful way for them to use their energy and give something back to the church. They can work with their parents, other adults, or youth depending on their level of independence.

The schedule is:

- Donuts and coffee at 8 a.m.
- Work starts anytime after that.
- Lunch will be served.
- The day will be finished by 1 p.m.

We always need help in the afternoon to get things put away so the church is ready for worship on Sunday morning.

Please join us for a day, or for a couple of hours, of fellowship and fun. Sign up tables will be in the Atrium on Oct. 26 and Nov. 2, or you can register at the church office. See you on Nov. 8!

November – Time to Remember

“Now thank we all our God With heart and hands and voices, who wondrous things hath done, In whom His world rejoices...”

If it's November, then it's time for Congregationalists to once again reflect on our heritage as the Lord's free people. We've talked enough about our history to know that our roots are more than the 'Pilgrims,' though they still have the most romantic appeal for us. Still, it's good to take the time to look back and to think about whence we've come so that we can look ahead to where we're headed. Many folks have said to me, “What is Congregationalism?” Well, it's important for us to remember what the learned Congregational historian, Rev. Arvel M. Steece, has said, “There was a time when people did not call us ‘the Congressional Church!’”

Our Congregational Way is a coming together of two strains of the Puritans, the movement to ‘purify’ or bring the English Church into the fullness of the Reformation. Some felt the need to separate from what they perceived as an impure Church, while others wanted to stay in the Church and work for reform from inside. American Congregationalism is the result of those separatist and non-separatist strains coming together and is expressed in our great charter document The Cambridge Platform (1648). At one point the Congregational Churches dominated the American religious scene, but this shifted during the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

The Congregationalists remained prominent, however, and influenced American government and education on many fronts. From the nineteenth century on, the Congregationalists were committed to a broadly inclusive, ecumenical stance. Standing on the graves of the Pilgrims at Burial Hill, Plymouth in 1865 they declared, “We will work with anyone who owns the Lordship of Jesus Christ.” This openness led to an orientation toward organic mergers, which eventually led to the merger controversy of the 1940s and 1950s. The result of the ‘merger’ was the United Church of Christ, the Conservative Congregational Christian Conference and our own National Association of Congregational Christian Churches. Two denominational bodies came together and four – if we count the non-aligned Churches – came out of it.

Our Church comes out of this rich history. Eleven pioneers who had come from Massachusetts, upstate New York and other parts of New England brought their faith with them to the Wisconsin woods. In March of 1842 they gathered in the Gilbert family cabin and “gathered” the First Congregational Church of Wauwatosa. They were served for a while by Rev. John J. Miter from the Plymouth Congregational Church in Milwaukee and the Rev. Hiram Marsh from the American Home Missionary Society and worshipped in various homes. In 1845 the Rev. Luther Clapp, fresh out of Andover Seminary and newly married, came out under the auspices of the American Home Missionary Society. In 1848 the congregation was able to call him as their “settled” minister. (There is a wonderful story of how Deacon Richard Gilbert, when informed that people didn't think they could support a full-time settled minister, told fellow Church members that he would be putting his farm up for sale and moving back East. He said that he couldn't stay in a place where Christian faith wasn't a priority. Everyone present was moved by his commitment and, surprisingly, more than enough money was found to support the new minister!) Rev. Clapp served the congregation and the community tirelessly, including helping to start Wauwatosa's first high school in the parsonage living room, until 1874. He then served as the “district evangelist” helping to start and support other Congregational Churches until his retirement. He died in 1894 as a member of First Congregational Church.

The Church purchased land from the Hart family in 1853 and constructed their first meeting house on it that same year. The building was added to in 1870 and was redone in Queen Anne (also sometimes known as carpenter gothic) style in the 1880s. The new nave was started in 1919 and occupied in 1921. The education and office building was added in 1959. Over the years the building has been well-used for both Church and community functions (including the first basketball games for Wauwatosa High School being played in our Social Hall!). We continue the “benevolence of the building,” opening our doors to a number of community groups who benefit from our facility at little or no cost.

Now that we've done the condensed history, what's the future for Wauwatosa's ‘first’ Church? If, as someone once said, “past is prologue,” the future is bright. Over the years First Church has been committed to the service of God, to the growth of its members in spirit—

MUNCHKIN MATTERS

Drive-in Movie: WALL-E

Nov. 28th at 6 p.m. we'll be watching Pixar's latest megahit, WALL-E. This is no ordinary cartoon. Sure it's funny, and visually stunning, but there's a real message under the show and some deft storytelling that harkens back to the glory days of silent film. Common Sense media warns that, "youngest viewers may get a little restless during the atmospheric, virtually dialogue-free first half-hour. They'll still enjoy it, but -- unlike older kids and grown-ups -- they won't be that impressed by how much is said with so few words. But the action (which includes some robot fights, weapons being fired, explosions, and chase scenes) picks up soon enough." The movie is free. Four dollars gets you all the pizza, popcorn, and lemonade you care to eat. Sleeping bags and PJ's are welcome for youngsters, but this is a movie that all ages (even teenagers, even grandparents) will enjoy.

Pilgrim Fellowship PF Place

Nov. 7-8: Lock-in!

You asked for it. You got it. The PF overnighter has arrived. We'll meet at the church building November 7 at 6 p.m. to caravan over to the West Suburban YMCA for some fun and games. They say, "Come prepared to play board games and to engage in physical activities like capture the flag, soccer, or kickball." Games end at 8 p.m. when we'll head back to the church for pizza and a movie and, yes, more games. Don't forget to bring a sleeping bag, pillow, etc. We'll eat breakfast together and head home at 10 a.m. on November 8.

Just Thinkin'

The Joys of Discovery

What are you all doing on Saturday night? Is it a worship service? Is it a small group? Why did you change the name? Are people actually going? These are a few of the questions people have asked me over the past month. Here is my brief reply.

We're having fun! No it's not a worship service, and no it's not a small group. At least it's not like any worship service or small group you've been to before. It's more like a cross between the two with some intentional service and celebration thrown in for good measure. We changed the name because we're doing things differently than last year and we wanted people to ask rather than assume. And yes, people are going. It's not a huge group and it changes quite a bit each week, but that's expected on Saturday night when everyone's schedules are so tight.

At first glance our schedule might seem disjointed or confusing, and there's truth in that, but there's also a flow to the whole thing, and it's producing something I really didn't expect. The discipline of announcing ahead of time that we're going to take time to serve and take time to rest is changing us. It's changing the way we think, pushing us toward action instead of simple contemplation, pushing us toward completable projects instead of unbounded responsibilities that leave us feeling rushed and incomplete at the same time.

In short, ReGenerations is living up to it's name.

News Briefs

Breakfast with the Girls

Breakfast with the Girls is excited to welcome Catherine Sawinski from the Curatorial Department at the Milwaukee Art Museum. She will talk about the beautiful Neapolitan Crèche that was donated to the museum several years ago by a prominent Wisconsin collector. It is on display during the holidays.

We also invite anyone who would like to share their favorite crèche or nativity scenewith our group, to either, bring it along, or let us know and we would be happy to pick it up and have it ready when you arrive. We can share stories of our crèches or just enjoy seeing each other's treasures. Call Char Powers, (414) 257-3465 or Jennifer Wakefield, (414) 257-1848 to pick up your crèche.

Please note the change in date: Saturday Nov. 15. As always, we welcome your baking and encourage you to sign up at the Gathering Table in the Atrium.

Christmas Decorations

Believe it or not, the time for decorating the Nave for Christmas is drawing close and the Deacons are requesting donations to contribute toward their purchase. You may make an offering in your own name, in honor of someone, or in memory of a loved one. Dedications will be printed in the Christmas order of worship. Forms are available on the welcome table.

Heritage Social Nov. 22

First Congregational Church of Mukwonago is inviting all area churches to their campus on Saturday, Nov. 22, for a Wisconsin Congregational Association social event. We promise: no business conducted!

"Celebrating Our Heritage" will be at FCC, Mukwonago, at 231 Roberts Drive from 4 to 7 p.m. Nov. 22. We will celebrate our Pilgrim heritage as we enjoy food, fun and fellowship. We'll break bread together, so bring a dish to pass and please let them know you'll be there for dinner with an RSVP by Nov. 8 to FCC Mukwonago, (262) 363-7249 or e-mail: office@fccmukwonago.org.

tual depth, to service of the community and the maintenance and growth of the common good. It's important for us to continue to function out of this tradition, reaching out to those in need – spiritually or materially – and opening our hearts and arms to those who come through our doors seeking a “Church home.” If we stay true to our core values, true to our covenant with God and one another, the future is, indeed, bright.

It's not inappropriate that our Congregational “high holy day” is Thanksgiving. We have much to be thankful for – despite the shaky economy. It's precisely in times like ours that we need to look to our past, to our heritage in order to live now and toward the future. To live Thanksgiving is the best way to approach it. So... “now thank we ALL our God!”

Yours for the Way,
Steve
