A THANK YOU FROM SADO

Dear Bill,

Greetings and hope that this letter finds you, your family, and your people well. I am very pleased to receive your annual support (Easter support for Grace Children's Ministry), today we have received $4,000 through NACCC. Thank God.

Please convey my greetings and thanks to your lovely people. We have had no Sunday Services, no Mission activities, no schools in almost 3 months, but hopefully all will be reopened by the end of this month.

We are praying for your Church.

With a lot of thanks.

Edward Winslow was a Congregationalist

Edward Winslow was born in 1595 in Worcestershire, England. As a young apprentice, he met William Brewster in London; and later, traveling in the Netherlands, he joined the Separatist congregation that Brewster belonged to in Leiden. He married Elizabeth Barker there.

Both Winslow and Brewster were among the passengers on the Mayflower in 1620. (Brewster, wanted by authorities for his outspoken support for the Puritan cause, was hiding under an assumed name.) Winslow was one of the men who signed the Mayflower Compact while still on board the ship. Elizabeth, his wife, would die during the colony's first, hard winter.

Winslow was a skillful diplomat who maintained a lifelong friendship with Massasoit, chief of the Wampanoag tribe. He was instrumental in maintaining the peace treaty with those Native Americans. In addition to being an ambassador to the Indians, Winslow also served as the colony's envoy to England.

Winslow became a very important citizen of Plymouth. He had a large estate, with a huge library by Colonial standards. His house served as the colony's first school and as the meetinghouse for the church until a schoolhouse and a church building could be constructed. He also succeeded Miles Standish as military leader of the colony, and he served as assistant governor once and as governor three times.

Called by the Congregationalist Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of the British Isles, to a place in his government, Winslow traveled to London. He never again returned to America after 1646, dying at sea in 1655.

Our understanding of the first Thanksgiving is based on a paragraph in a letter Winslow sent to a friend in 1621:

Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent four men on fowling, that so we might after a special manner rejoice together after we had gathered the fruit of our labors. They four in one day killed as much fowl as, with a little help beside, served the company almost a week. At which time, among other recreations, we exercised our arms, many of the Indians coming amongst us, and among the rest their greatest king Massasoit, with some ninety men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted, and they went out and killed five deer, which they brought to the plantation and bestowed upon our governor, and upon the captain, and others. And although it be not always so plentiful as it was at this time with us, yet by the Goodness of God, we are so far from want that we often wish you partakers of our plenty.
